ERROL FLYNN Those first thoughts of death, destruction and suicide began to occur within me--which would not easily or perhaps ever vanish. I no longer had such an interest in living. I didnt give a damn, in fact. Much of the will to live had gone. Like Hemingway, he sat with a gun to his head. He contemplated suicide. Three nights in a row he sat at the edge of the bed with a revolver to his head. The third night it was in his mouth. He, Errol Flynn, had power, fame, money, women, yet it was all an empty victory. He had been destroyed by the rape trial. That which I had, my big house, my yacht, my bank account, seemed hollow. None of these could take the place of self respect, which I had lost. He would write in his autobiography, Inside I was smarting, terribly wounded from the scar of the rape trial. He had other aspirations for his life than becoming a phallic symbol. Everyone thought they knew Errol Flynn, but they didnt. He was a complicated man who camouflaged his true self from the outside world and only through some of his own writing could one glean the type of person he really was and what he had hoped to be. No one could enter with aplomb and grace like him, who clicked his heels in salute like him, who was the greatest swashbuckler like him, a terrific horseman who held his sword and lance as if they were part of him; no one could be as great a leader like him, tall, handsome, dashing, whose voice, eyes and mannerisms would make ladies fall in love with him and men follow him...
